GUEST LECTURE

The English Department of SWRGDC recently hosted an insightful guest lecture on the topic "Sounds of English" by J. Mohanavalli, an esteemed speaker and language expert. The session was aimed at enhancing students' understanding of phonetics, pronunciation, and sound patterns in English—an essential area in language learning.

J. Mohanavalli emphasized the importance of mastering phonemes and the role of intonation and stress in effective communication. The lecture included interactive elements where students were invited to practice various English sounds and understand their articulation.

The session proved to be highly engaging and educational, especially for English language learners and aspiring teachers. Students appreciated the clarity and energy of the speaker, making the event both enjoyable and academically enriching.
